MEMORANDUM FOR

THE DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

SUBJECT: \ Political Intelligence Collection (C)

During the past year the Political Intelligence Working Group has succeeded in making specific progress in improving the organizational and structural arrangements under which CIA does its business overseas. As we approach the end of this year, I would like to know how CIA has made use of these improvements to upgrade its political intelligence collection capacity, a subject on which we have had constant dialogue for more than two years. Specifically, I would like by the middle of December answers to the following questions:

 During 1979 how many significant new agents have been recruited overseas?
 In what ways have NFIP priorities and resources been adjusted to meet the need for more human source collection? How has this been reflected in Z B B rankings of human source political intelligence line items?
 What steps have been taken to focus collection on internal political dynamics of target countries?
